Dear Professor Baldwin,

We here at team November game development hope to find you well.

This week we have spent extensive time working on fleshing out the design document and assuring that all project requirements are listed and defined. The design document has all needed information for the team to fully develop and flesh out the game. In addition to finishing the design document the team has spent some time defining the basic functionalities of the game, which will be delivered and working by the next delivery date.

Enclosed with this letter are two deliverables. The Final Design Document for Insect War Force 7, as well as an outline of the basic functionality the team is currently working on implementing for the game.

Sincerely,

Ethan Meeks
Charlie McConnell
